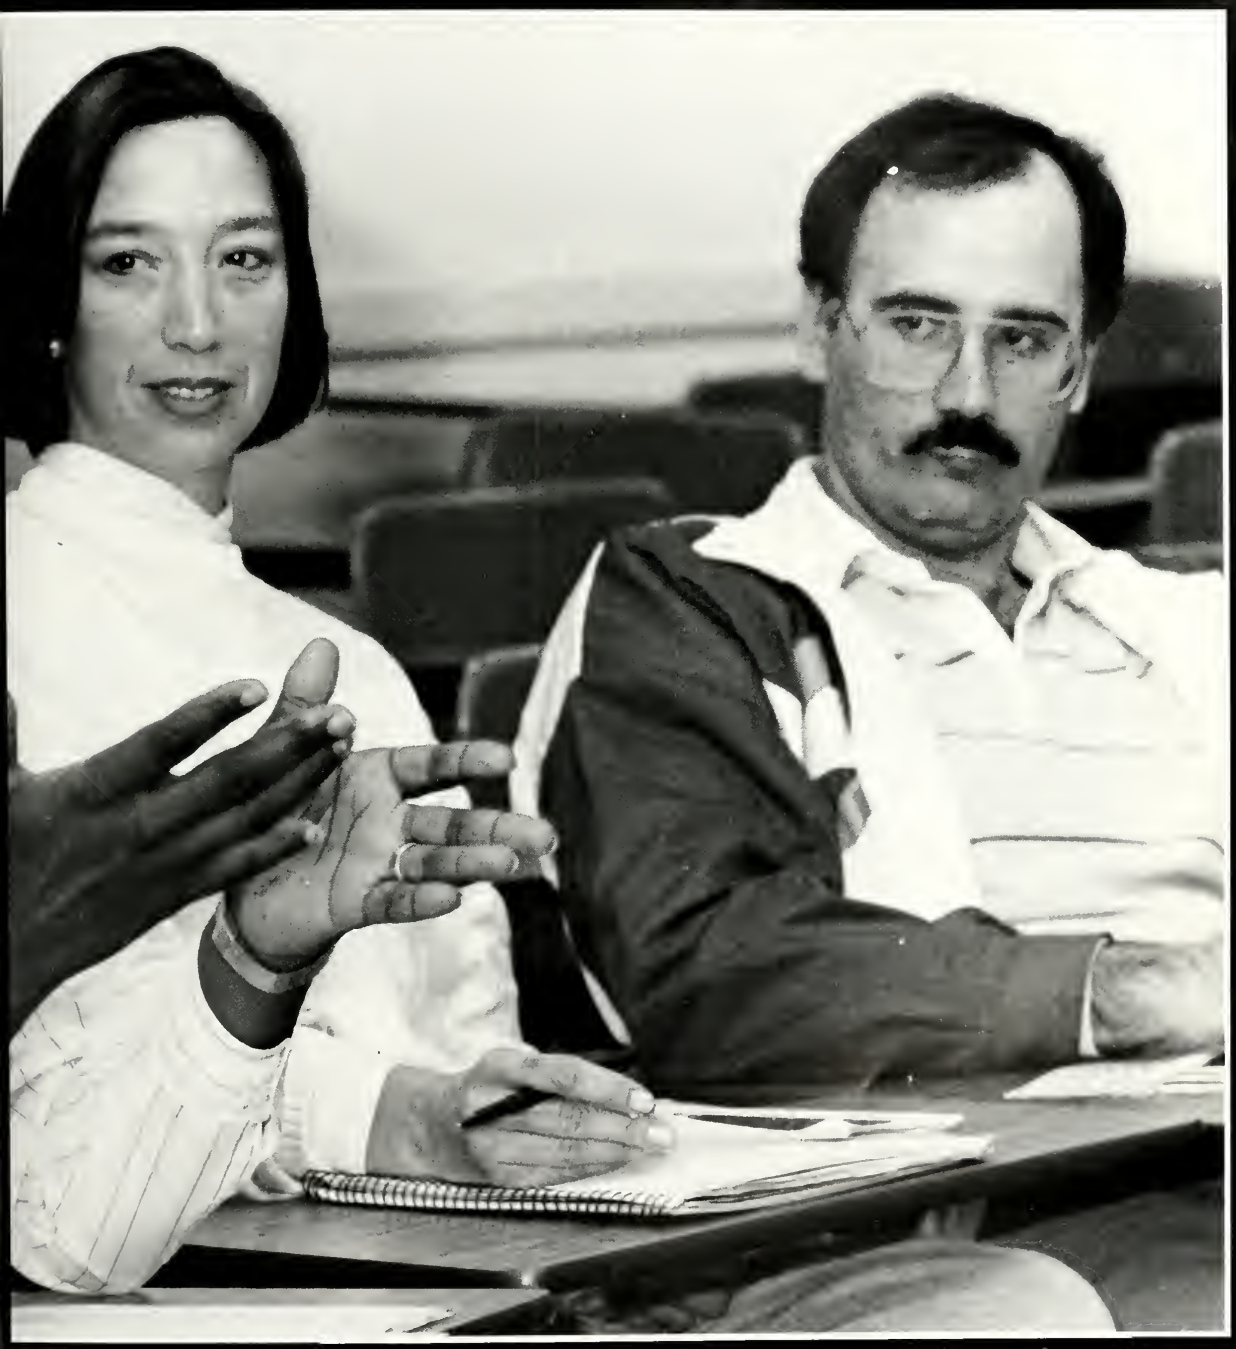
Faculty And Administration



Communications

Dr. Alfred Larry Lorenz
Chairman of the Communications Department

This Department is geared to produce a student who is both educated and trained. Many students select this major due to the outstanding reputation, the school upholds in this field. This intense study stresses critical awareness, the ability to make decisions, and technical and organizational competence; so that to prepare the student for actual types of situations the student will incur in this particular field of study. This Department offers a variety of courses in radio, television, journalism (broadcast and print), public relations, advertising, photography, graphics and film theory. This major gives a student a solid basis in the techniques of the field so that the student will be able to deal with social consequences of the complex national and global communications system.

Chairman: Alfred L. Lorenz, Ph.D. Professors: Alfred L. Lorenz, John H. Penny backer, Raymond A. Schroth, S.J. Associate Professors: Ralph Thomas Bell, Mary I. Blue, William M. Hammel, William B. Kelly Assistant Professors: Robert T. Buckman, Michael E. Cremedas, Michael Frierson, David M. Myers Extraordinary Faculty: Assistant Professors - Preston William Huey, Leslie G. Foreign Language Department

The Modern Foreign Language program seeks reading and speaking mastery of a language spoken somewhere in the world today. Students are taught how to communicate with a people and a culture previously unfamiliar to them, and they become eligible to work in an expanding field of international relationships.

Language majors study the literature, culture and history of the native country, and related subjects such as linguistics or international relations. Internships are also available. The Department of Modern Foreign Languages has a new Foreign Language Center. The center provides students with services including tutoring, assistance with computer instruction, audio tapes, foreign language newspapers and magazines, and the opportunity to see foreign films.

Biology Department

There are seven full-time faculty members who are specifically dedicated to the preprogram. Because the preprograms comprise more than eighty percent of the Biology department, there are many clubs and ways outside of the classroom for the students to get involved. The department offers membership in a national honor society, Tri-Beta, and membership in the Gammard Pre-Dentistry Society.

English Department

ause success in he future depends on an understanding of the past, a riculum in literature and literary theory forms the backbone of the rses offered by the English Department. A sequence of advanced rses in creative and professional writing can prepare you for a nber of commercial opportunities. The department is committed to education of individual students and is proud of the fact that all sses are taught by faculty who have already learned the craft of ching- not graduate students who are still learning.

Psychology Department

e two most important features that we have in the Loyola department psychology are its more than soo students that make up the artment, and its eight faculty members. Psychology is the second gest undergraduate major at Loyola. All instruction in the department provided by an instructor who holds a P.H.D. About one half of the f members are licensed psychologists. All psychology majors are igned a faculty advisor who counsels that student until graduation. This fosters close student-faculty relationships. Students tend to do better academically due to this close relationship.

Physics

Loyola's Physics Department encourages the formation and development of outstanding undergraduate physicists. The physics faculty is actively involved in research and dedicated to excellence in teaching. Biweekly seminars given by the faculty and outside speakers help physics majors keep up with current research problems. Active areas in experimental work at Loyola include solid state physics, and low temperature and superconductivity phenomena. Current theoretical work includes mathematical physics, quantum theory and general relativity.

A well-equipped machine shop with a full-time machinist helps support undergraduate research. A student machine shop, glass lab and woodworking shop are also available as well as a helium liquefier. dilution refrigerator and various low temperature systems.

Philosophy

The Philosophy Department offers each student the chance to work closely with professors whose expertise covers many different areas. Independent studies are available in special cases. The Philosophy Department also sponsors a Philosophy Club which provides a forum in which both professors and students can present their latest research and engage in philosophical dialogue. Loyola possesses a superior undergraduate collection of philosophy texts with substantial holdings in the history of philosophy. Both primary and secondary sources are available, including many editions in the original languages.

Chemistry

e Chemistry Department is accredited by the American Chemi- Society and offers an approved program leading to the Bache- of Science in chemistry. This program is a sequence of roductory and advanced courses totaling 45 semester hours. A emedical program is available with a 30-hour major in chemis- that includes math and other sciences but also offers a wide oice of electives in the liberal arts traditions.

r many years the Chemistry Department has offered an honors ogram which includes 5 semesters of independent experimental search. Student research sometimes has culminated in the authorship of scientific papers with experts in the field. Con- ts with local research and industrial laboratories have resulted our students working part-time as laboratory technicians. Our dents belong to the Students Affiliate chapter of the American emical Society, which was chartered in 1942.

Mathematics

MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT

Because of the intertwining roots of Mathematics and Computer Science in the world today, Loyola combines the fields under the Mathematical Sciences Department. There are three major programs in the Department: the Bachelor of Science in Computer Science, the Bachelor of Science in Information Systems and the Bachelor of Science in Mathematics.

Students may join several student organizations dedicated to developing and maintaining interest in the major. Independent courses are also available. The faculty is also committed to excellence in teaching. Faculty members have regular interaction with students outside the classroom.

Chairman: Janet G. Melancon, Ed.D.

Associate Professors: Marc Artrouni, Antonio M. Lopez, Jr., Janet G. Melancon, Stephen M. Scariano, Ralph Tucci.
Assistant Professors: William P. Conniff, Louis D. Gentry, Irene Loomis, Brian C. Rodrigues, Ralph Tucci

Political Science

The Political Science Department presents curriculum that is designed to give the student a general knowledge of the discipline, the problems it deals with, and the development of human knowledge and values about political matters.

The Department frequently offers seminars in foreign policy, American government and other topics of particular interest to undergraduates. Participation in independent study is encouraged; it is a fine opportunity to explore personal ideas. There are many career opportunities for political science graduates. About 15 percent pursue graduate studies, usually in political science. Approximately 35 percent of political science graduates work for national, state or local governments or become active in politics at the grass roots and community levels.

Religious Studies

The academic study of religion is a high priority in a university that is both Catholic and Jesuit. This study is pursued in a spirit of free intellectual inquiry. The immediate concern of the religious believer and of the impact of religion upon human existence. This means that religion is reflected upon as a force that has shaped and been shaped by social, political, scientific, and ethical concerns. Since Loyola is a Catholic university, these studies are undertaken from within the perspective of the Catholic tradition. Hence, the Department of Religious Studies is ecumenical both in the composition of its faculty and in its outlook.

Drama And Speech

The Jesuit tradition in drama and speech goes back to the very beginning of the order's educational activities. In the Jesuit school theatre,"the attempt was made for the first time to use the stage, not as the Humanists had used it, mainly for the sake of teaching Latin, but as a formative influence on the student's entire personality." At the same time, no element of the dramatic arts was left unexplored, so that the spoken word, while retaining its importance, took its place alongside of mine, music and spectacle. It is not surprising, therefore, that a number of leading dramatists began the development of their art through contact with the Jesuit stage — Molière and Corneille in France, Calderón de la Barca in Spain, Goldoni in Italy.

Education

The Department of Education at Loyola offers a B.S. degree in elementary education. Certification in Secondary education is offered in most academic areas. In addition, the department offers graduate degrees in Elementary Education, Secondary Education, Guidance and Counseling, Educational Administration and Reading. The education programs at Loyola are designed to enhance thinking and communication skills which enable students to become effective members of their community and their profession. In turn, they will be able to share these skills with children and youth they reach.

As our nation faces a teacher shortage, the Department is committed to the challenge of providing qualified reflective teachers in keeping with the liberal arts tradition of Loyola University. We are complimented yearly by the principals and superintendents from all over the country for the quality of our graduates- a compliment we take pride in.

History

Last year members of the History Department faculty were recipients of a number of awards and grants. Fr. Ben Wren and Sr. Grace Swift participated in N.E.H. funded Summer Seminars at Princeton and Brandeis Universities respectively. Peter Cangelosi received an R.O.T.C. grant for a Summer Seminar for L.E.H. and David Moore directed an L.E.H. Library Seminar in the fall. Nancy Anderson spent the spring of 1990 in India on a grant from the American Institute of Indian Studies. Fr. Leo Nicoll, on sabbatical last year, spent the spring of 1989 in Austria. Maurice Brungardt was in Mexico during the summer directing Loyola's Mexico City program.

Variety has always been said to be the spice of life, so don't let it be said that the "so-called" variety can't be found on Loyola's campus. Choosing a major is made very difficult with so much to choose from, but there are many faculty willing to take time and help a student make this most difficult decision in their life.

Loyola offers many opportunities for students to study specific areas on campus and at others campuses in the New Orleans Area.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Loyola's Joseph A. Butt, S.J., College of Business Administration is committed to value-oriented education and to the education of the whole person. Its philosophy is that an education should equip a student to meet the rapid developments he or she will encounter and enable that student to make sound judgments. The principal objective of the College of Business Administration is to provide students with a well-rounded education that includes a foundation in the liberal arts and sciences and a study of the art and science of management and administration. There are 37 full-time faculty members in the college of Business Administration, most of whom hold terminal degrees in their respective areas. Members are assigned new students whom they council with great personal attention.

The roots of City College, Loyola's evening division, date back to 1919 when extension courses were established for those who were unable to attend classes on a full time basis. For over seventy years Loyola has maintained its commitment to serve the educational needs of working adults. City College provides a variety of degree programs staffed by full time faculty, which reflect the basic philosophy of Jesuit education combining rigorous, contemporary professional education with a board foundation in the humanities.

College Of Music

The college, founded in 1932, is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. It holds membership in the National Association of Schools of Music, Association of American Colleges, Jesuit Educational Association, National Catholic Educational Association, Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and the National Foundation for Music Therapy.

The College of Music offers the opportunity to combine liberal arts studies with professional music courses in the only college of music conducted by the Jesuit Fathers in the United States. Historically, New Orleans offers an abundance of cultural opportunities. The city supports an opera company, a major symphony orchestra, a symphony chorus, and numerous smaller professional organizations. Traditionally, students from Loyola have played an important role in the musical life of the city. Students study and work in close proximity with professional singers and conductors.

School Of Law

Loyola's Law School was first established in 1914, became a member of the Association of American Law Schools in 1924, and received approval from the American Bar Association in 1931. With the move to the new building on the Broadway campus in 1985, facilities were expanded to include state-of-the-art equipment and much more library space. This allows for the school to be a vital part of the Loyola community, but still remain quite independent in environment.

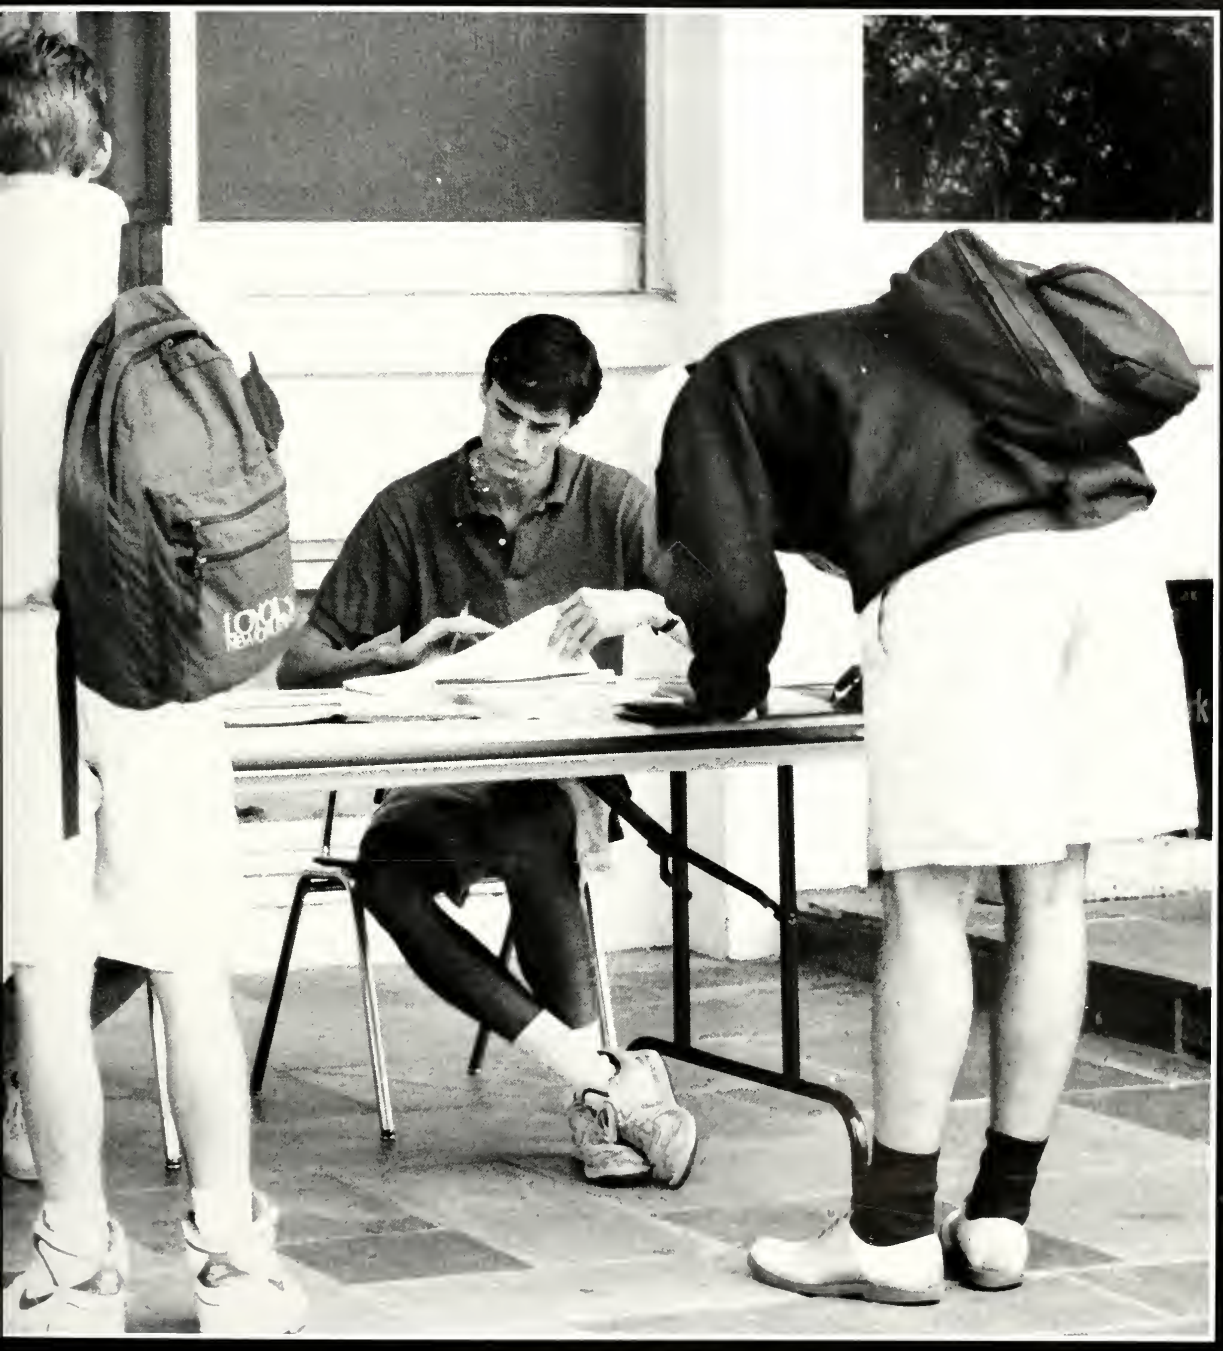
The School of Law has an approximate population of 740 students with an entering class of 230. The school has a faculty membership of about 50. Within this smaller part of Loyola many activities are offered to enrich the goal of receiving a Juris Doctor degree. These included: The Code, Communications Law Society, Delta Theta Phi, Phi Alpha Delta, Phi Delta Phi, and the Saint Thomas More Law Club.

Law Clinic

The Law Clinic introduces senior law students to the rigors of actual practice and to the human problems in all adversarial procedures. Its purpose is to give law students an opportunity to apply the theory they have been learning. Under the authority of a Rule adopted by the Louisiana Supreme Court, Senior law students may engage in a limited practice of law. They may render legal services under supervision of a practicing attorney to people who cannot afford a private attorney.

The Loyola Law Clinic is made up of 45 to 55 students and seven full time supervising attorneys. It has an administrative staff of four and is located on the ground floor of the Law School.

Organizations



Buddig Residence Council

Buddig Residence Council Representatives serve as a voice for complaints, suggestions or concerns with hall policy, and bring new programming ideas. Together, BRC plans favorite hall activities such as Ice Cream and Pizza parties, movie nights, leadership workshops, guest speakers, study breaks, and hall picnics. It also helps promote other organizations' programs through sponsorship or publicity; donations went to participants from Housing Now! Loyola, Whelan Day Care Center, LUCAP, and the UPB. The council also purchases new appliances for added hall improvement. This year, many members participated in workshops and outside conferences to further improve their leadership skills.

Biever Residence Council

"We're working harder, to serve you better" is the motto that best describes the 1989-90 Biever Residence Council. The Council exists as a special interest organization, working to provide improved services and facilities, as well as promoting the interests of the residents of Biever Hall. In addition to routine study breaks and other in-hall programming, the BRC co-sponsors programs and events with other campus organizations. These include anything from the "Mississippi Moonlight Cruise" on the Natchez, to LUCAP's "Housing Now" campaign and an occasional T.G.I.F. As far as improved living conditions in Biever, the Council was responsible for renovating the laundry room, purchasing cleaning supplies and ironing boards for checkout.

Job Done

Cabra Residence Council

The Cabra Residence Council consists of sixteen students, two representatives from each floor and six executives. The purpose of the council is to make Cabra an enjoyable and informative place to live. We accomplish this by purchasing items needed for the hall and by providing programs for the residents. Programs which we have sponsored are: weekly study breaks, quad picnics, movie nights, a trip to a Saints game, the Alcohol Awareness Quiz Bowl, and a Halloween party. Throughout the year we continued to provide activities for the residents of Cabra.

The Maroon, founded a long time ago, is a journalistic organizations dedicated to keeping the administration in line, staying up late on deadline nights, and defending the rights of the downtrodden. The organization's newsletter comes out each Friday, to the tumultuous applause and disapproval of the reading public. The Maroon has consistently achieved the recognition of its national peers, and holds membership in the exalted Association College Press Hall of Fame. The organization plans to remain on the cutting edge of journalism, as long as no one pushes it off.

Loyola Baseball

John DuBose, vice-president, and Greg Suire, president, of the Loyola Baseball Club get really excited about the spring semester at Loyola. There is quite an obvious reason for that enthusiasm: The spring is when the Baseball Club really starts up because of its 31-game season. The club just doesn't play against local junior colleges during that season, however. Loyola Baseball club, with about 25 members, works on baseball clinics and fundraisers. They also plan parties in like Fat Harry's and Audubon park. Only people who worship the sport of baseball can join- or at last those who like it.

Officials Club

A fairly new club, the Officials Club, is a club not only of rule experts, but of sports enthusiasts. The members of this club can be officials of any Loyola University Intramural sport like volleyball, soccer or flag football. The officials get together to have fun and support each other in the skill of officiating. Just ask Don DuBois, club president, or Cheryl Vogelphol, vice president, about it.

Presenting students with care packages during final exams is one service that the Officials Club provides. Besides this, the group just likes to get together for sports activities like Saints games and volleyball tournaments and sometimes have picnics.

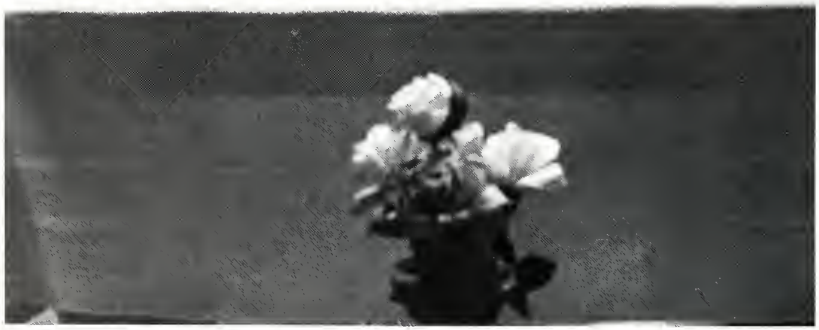
Farewell To Father McDermott



Rev. Neal McDermott, O.P. Dean Of Campus Ministry

Whether he was just walking around Campus, getting involved in activities, or giving friendly advice, Father Mc Dermott was there to be your friend, a teacher or someone to look up to. There isn't a student on Campus that hasn't seen him in his office in Bobet or even talked to him as he was walking across Campus. We will all miss his genuine concern for the students, the faculty, the administration, and for Loyola, in general.

University Bookstore

The bookstore exists to serve the university community by providing the necessary merchandise while producing a profitable return on investment. The bookstore operates under the premise that profit and service are mutually dependent on one another. Normally a busy spot on campus when classes begin, the bookstore has come to the attention of many people throughout the year. Publications contradicting Catholic ethics have been taken off the shelf, and such a controversy makes this year extraordinary for the bookstore. From pens to paper and mugs to t-shirts, the bookstore has anything needed to survive college life.

Alpha Delta Gamma Brothers

For over 65 years, Alpha Delta Gamma National Catholic Fraternity has been an integral part of the Loyola Community. In fact, this established ADG as the oldest social fraternity on campus. The brothers of Epsilon Chapter have lead a very active existence on Loyola's campus. As a matter of fact, one can find the Delts participating in almost every aspect of campus life — SGA, LUCAP, UPB, BSU, Residential Life, IFC, etc. ADG is also proud to have the highest cumulative GPA of the fraternities, as well as the largest number of presidential scholars for brothers. When they are not busy with these activities or studying, they are either playing sports or doing community service.

The 1989-1990 school year, however, proved to be an interesting challenge. Although ADG got off to a slow start, it did not stop the brothers from keeping active. In October, ADG took the children from Crescent House to Audubon Zoo. Later that month, they went door-to-door collecting canned foods for the New Orleans Food Bank. Following their annual Halloween party, ADG sponsored their first Jailbreak party. Towards the end of November, ADG helped provide security for the Rolling Stones Concert as a favor to a friend and a brother. The fall semester closed with their Christmas Formal and Universal Night, a night where brothers meet and converse with brothers/alumni from all over the country.

The saddest moment, though, came when ADG bid a fond farewell to their moderator, Fr. Jack Dennis, SJ, who was transferred to Philadelphia. Fr. Jack was a true friend and brother to everyone, and will be missed. Good Luck, Fr. Jack!!!

In the spring, ADG hosted a party at Brunos, and then began with Rush. Multiple events followed in an effort to promote better relations between the active membership, alumni, and the pledges, events like their annual chili party, a party at Waldo's hosted by the little sisters, providing security for the Super Bowl, Mardi Gras, Rogue Ball, retreat, and sorority mixers. The final event, Vegas Night, enabled the fraternity to raise over $1000.00 for their philanthropy, the Muscular Dystrophy Association. The semester came to an end with the induction of twenty-two new brothers, Spring Formal, and the end-of-the-year crawfish boil.

Alpha Delta Gamma has existed on Loyola's campus for over 65 years, and will continue to do so for 65 years to come.

COVER

1 Anti-communist protests flourished in the Eastern Bloc including Bulgaria where 50,000 people demanded the arrest of former Communist party chief Todor Zhivkov.

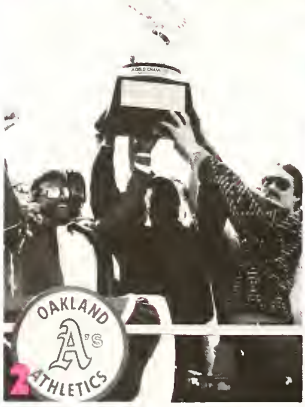
2 Hoisting their World Series trophy is outfielder Rickey Henderson, reliever Dennis Eckersly, Series MVP Dave Stewart and third baseman Carney Lansford.

3 Actor-comedian Arsenio Hall made his debut as a late-night talk show host on "The Arsenio Hall Show." Robert DeNiro, left, was among Hall's celebrity guests.

4 "I'm not finished yet,"said Mick Jagger when the Rolling Stones embarked on a 36-city $70-million tour, the band's first in 10 years.

5 Paula Abdul, a former Los Angeles Lakers cheerleader, sang and danced her way to four MTV awards for her hit single "Straight Up."

6 Auto designer Mark Jordan unveiled a new classic, the Mazda Miata, which became one of the hottest-selling sports cars in the U.S.



R N E T N S M

7 Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose was thrown out of the game for the last time after evidence revealed he placed bets on his own team.

8 Televangelist Jim Bakker waves goodbye for 45 years after being found guilty of 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy.

9 Douglas Wilder flashes the victory sign after capturing the Virginia governorship and becoming the first elected black governor in U.S. history.

10 Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev promised Pope John Paul II the USSR had changed its attitude on religious freedoms during the first-ever meeting between a Kremlin chief and a pontiff.

11 Eleven-million gallons of crude oil swirled on the surface of Alaska's Prince William Sound after the tanker Exxon Valdez ran aground, creating the worst oil spill in U.S. history.

12 Hurricane Hugo ravaged the South Carolina coast in September, leaving $3 billion in property damages in its wake.
